INTERGENERATIONAL RESOURCES

The Journal of Intergenerational Relationships – The Journal of Intergenerational Relationships is a publication that allows scholars, practitioners, policy makers, educators, and advocates to learn about recent intergenerational research, practice methods and policy initiatives. The publication is produced four times a year. For subscription details, contact their publication office at Taylor & Francis, Inc., 530 Walnut Street, Suite 850, Philadelphia, PA 19106. http://www.tandfonline.com/toc/wjir20/current.

GrandFamilies Journal – The GrandFamilies Journal was developed by The National Research Center on Grandparents Raising Grandchildren, as an online information source for grandparents raising grandchildren. It provides evidence-based research for scholars, clinicians, policymakers, educators, program administrators and family advocates. For more information, visit the website at http://scholarworks.wmich.edu/grandfamilies/.

Center for Intergenerational Learning – Temple University’s Intergenerational Center has been in existence since 1979. Its center services as a national training and technical site for non-profits, foundations and government agencies interested in developing intergenerational programs and services. Housed in the university’s College of Health Professional and Social Work, the center is nationally known for engaging seniors and youth in civic engagement initiatives. For additional information contact them at 1700 N. Broad Street, Suite 412, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19122 or call 215-204-6540. http://education.temple.edu/igc

Penn State Intergenerational Activities Sourcebook – The Sourcebook was designed to bring generations together through fifty-three different exercises and activities to get to know each other better and explore common interests. The publication can be downloaded at Generations United – Generations United serves as a clearing house for information on intergenerational programs, and encourages organizations around the nation to improve the lives of children, youth, and older people through intergenerational collaboration. Each year they honor communities for their efforts through the “Best Intergenerational Communities Award.” They can be reached at 202-289-3979. http://gu.org/ generationOn – generationON, the youth division of the Points of Light organization, attempts to encourage youth to take action to make changes in the world through volunteer service in schools, youth organizations, and service clubs. Members of their National Youth Advisory Council serve as ambassadors for other youth by developing and executing key projects and activities. Three of the current council youth leaders are from the state of Florida. generationOn staff can be reached at 281 Park Avenue South, 6th Floor New York City, N.Y. 10010, 917-746-8182 or via email at info@generationOn.org. http://www.generationon.org/

Legacy Project - The Legacy Project is a grassroots organization that focuses on financial, social, and environmental social projects that engage children, youth, and adults around the world. Each year they sponsor the Listen to a Life Essay Contest in partnership with Generations United. The contest begins on “National Grandparents Day” and runs until the end of March 2015. The contest gives a young person 8-18 years of age an opportunity to interview an adult that is 50 years or older, and submit a 300-word story based on the interview. The Grand Prize Timeless Award is a Lenovo computer. Ten other winners receive a keepsake timepiece from Expressions of Time. For more information about the Legacy Project call 1-800-772-7765. http://www.legacyproject.org/

Youth Service America – Youth Service America (YSA) was founded in 1986 to engage youth in volunteer service and learning activities to help them impact the communities in which they live. There programs are administered to youth, educators, community organizations, and families through the Global Youth Service Network partners, which includes local, state, national and international organizations that are equally committed to community service and service learning. Each year, YSA sponsors Global Youth Service Day, the largest day of service event in the world for children and youth to engage in projects or activities that improve their communities. For more information, visit http://ysa.org.